What is the Freedom of Information Act?

The Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) provides public access to all federal agency records except for those records that are protected from disclosure by certain exemptions and exclusions.

In an attempt to increase transparency and patient access to information, CMS has made available Medicare and Medicaid Provider Survey and Certification findings as well as provider reimbursement information.